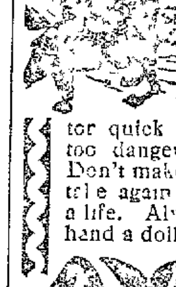
TIME is LIFE



The father? Gone for the doctor. The mother? Alone with her suffering child. Will the doctor never come? When there is croup in the house you can't get the doctor quick enough. It's too dangerous to wait. Don't make such a mistake again; it may cost a life. Always keep on hand a dollar bottle of

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

It cures the croup at once. Then when any one in the family comes down with a hard cold or cough a few doses of the Pectoral will cut short the attack at once. A 25 cent bottle will cure a miserable cold; the 50c. size is better for a cold that has been hanging on.

Keep the dollar size on hand.

"About forty years ago I came near dying with consumption, but was cured by Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, since which time I have kept Ayer's medicines in the house and recommend them to all my friends.

The Carrier's Greeting

January 1, 1901.

Once again, dear friends and patrons,
Patrons kind of the COMPILER,
Comes the Carrier of the paper;
Comes your humble servant Samuel.
He who brings the paper weekly,
Brings it promptly every Tuesday,
Brings it just as soon as printed,
Brings it to you regularly;
Brings it in the lovely spring time,
When the air is full of fragrance
And all nature smiles in gladness;
Brings it in the heat of summer,
When the days are long and sultry,
And the air is hot and stifling;
Brings it in the sober autumn,
When the ripened crops are gathered
And the yellow leaves are falling;
Brings it amid the snows of winter,
When the storms are raging wildly,
And the air is cold and frosty;
Brings it from a sense of pleasure,
Brings it for your joy and comfort,
Brings it for your delectation.

Should you ask me whence I linger
At your door a moment longer
On this gladsome New Year's morning,
When the hearts are beating fondly
For the happiness of kindred,
For the welfare of the needy,
For the sick and the afflicted,
For all true and faithful servants,
I should answer, I should tell you
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
Will be full [illegible]
For a copy of this poem
[illegible] the prompt and picked picture
Of [illegible] with [illegible].

If still further you would ask me
As to this my New Year's visit,
I should make reply and tell you
[illegible]
And to wish you joy and pleasure
[illegible]
[illegible]
While on earth you are sojourning
[illegible]
At the opening of the New Year
[illegible]

Not the streets are sort of lighted
By the [illegible]
By the [illegible] in heaven
When [illegible] is not shining,
By the glow worms and the fire flies
That in summer shed effulgence.
Thus with all these friendly agents
We are fairly well enlightened
When we're not in total darkness.

Of hotels the town has seven,
And they all are large and spacious
With equipment large and ample
For the town that comes in summer
For the guests that come in winter
When in search of first class quarters.

Full ten churches bless the village
With the light of Christian knowledge
With the hope of gospel preaching,
And the saving grace of prayer.
May God prosper much the churches
As the only hope of nations.

Mong the blessings of the County,
In the line of education
Is that noble institution
Known as Pennsylvania College.
Here the young men and the maidens,
Those who relish books and studies
They who have a thirst for knowledge
And who make the needful effort,
Can obtain an education.

Next the streets claim some attention,
Ere we end our disquisition
In this quaint and curious measure.
First the trolley tracks I mention
For they are a perfect nuisance
In their present bad condition
Being always out of order.
They are thus a serious hindrance
To the traffic of the public,
To the business of the people
Who are thus so greatly hampered
And who pay the borough taxes.
Why do not the borough fathers,
They who constitute the Council,
See that all the public highways
Are preserved for those who own them?

What the town just now is needing
Is more business enterprises
To employ more idle people,
All the people of the village
Who should be engaged in labor
And are not already busy.

That more mills may soon be running,
And more factories be humming,
And more whistles daily blowing
And more pay days shedding gladness
Where before was gloom and sadness,
In the homes of honest labor,
Is most devoutly to be wished.

The Battlefield of Gettysburg
Grandest Mecca of the nation
Is by far the most attractive
Of our country's noted places
That a park should be established,
Under governmental guidance
To preserve the field of battle,
Marked by monuments and tablets,
And by avenues and pathways,
Made most permanent and lasting,
For the guidance and the study
Of the future seer and student
To the world's remotest ages.
This the governmental agents,
Called the Battlefield Commission,
Have accomplished in a measure,
To be fully consummated
By achievements still more noble.

Of the farmers of the county,
The true yeomen of the nation,
They who toil from early morning
In the fields and in the meadows
Till the dusky shades of evening
Fall upon the rural landscape,
They who are the bone and sinew
Of this great and mighty nation,
It is fitting quite to mention
May we all be ever grateful
To the honest, sturdy farmers
For their ill requited labors
For the [illegible] of hungry millions.

Much in evidence is ever
Are the lawyers of the borough
With their skill in trying cases
Ever willing, ever ready,
To espouse the cause of clients,
If the fees are freely given.

And the doctors, all the doctors,
They who treat the people's ailments,
And who cure whenever able,
They whose rest is often broken
Through the day and in the night time
By the call of anxious patients.

Should you ask me now to tell you
Of the prices in our city
Where you best can do your shopping,
Where your money will go farthest
In the purchase of things needful
Where on best can buy your dry goods
Buy your clothing, and your hardware
Buy your groceries [illegible]
[illegible] and your boots and [illegible]
Buy your wagons and your harness

Buy your books and [illegible]
Buy your coal and [illegible]

Buy your [illegible] and finest printing

Should you ask me all these questions
I should answer, I would tell you
In a kind and cordial spirit

LADIES' HOME JOURNAL

A glimpse of the luxury with which rich Americans surrounded themselves is given in the January issue of The Ladies' Home Journal under the title "Housekeeping in a Millionaire's Family." If this issue of the Journal is a fair sample of what that popular magazine intends to give its readers in the new century its already wide field of usefulness will be greatly enhanced. One of the striking features of the January Journal, "The Baltimore Belle Who Made the Most Brilliant Match of Any Girl in America," recalls the fact that a Yankee "Queen" once sat on a Vice-Regal throne in Ireland. There is a little play for amateurs, "The Little Women's Play," adapted from Miss Alcott's story. Elizabeth Stuart Phelps brings more humor into the domestic complications of "The Successors of Mary the First." Charles Major tells a thrilling "Blue River Bear Story," and Howard Clifford contributes another chapter of "The Story of a Young Man." "A Winter Service at Church" by W. L. Taylor, and "A. B. Frost's Own Meeting" are page pictorial features that will be received with great favor. Edward Bok has an article on "The Two Centuries and This Magazine," giving a short review of the history of the Journal. There are also many other features that will prove useful and helpful to home makers. By The Curtis Publishing Company, Philadelphia. One dollar a year; ten cents a copy.

THE OUTLOOK

The January magazine number of The Outlook contains as its chief features: An article on the pictorial, architectural, and art aspects of the Paris Exposition by Mr. F. Hopkinson Smith, the well known author, painter and bridge contractor, illustrated by half a dozen or more beautifully reproduced half tones from water color drawings made for this express purpose by the author; the tenth instalment of Mr. Booker T. Washington's "Up From Slavery," which has attracted wide attention among all interested in the elevation of a negro race; an article by the Countess of Aberdeen contrasting the women of 1800 and 1900 is brought out by the International Congress of Women of last year; a readable article on the revival of interest in George Borrow's work, with a fine portrait; one on the American Women's College at Constantinople, with half a dozen pictures, one of which has special interest because it shows in a group of five girl students five distinct race types; a sketch of the work of the Rev G. L. McNutt, "Minister and Laborer," who, in order to know labor conditions, has worked as ditch digger, glass blower, miner, and in scores of jobs as a common laborer; "Two German Dramatists," (Hauptmann and Sudermann) by Edward A. Steiner, an account of a personal visit to these two famous writers; a thoughtful article on the French novel and the young girl, by Bentzon (Madame Blanc), two short stories and the general careful and comprehensive editorial survey of current history in politics, economics, literature, etc. ($3 a year. The Outlook Company, 287 Fourth Avenue, New York.)

HIS WIFE SAVED HIM. My wife's good advice saved my life writes F. M. Ross, of Winfield, Tenn., for I had such a bad cough I could hardly breathe, I steadily grew worse under doctor's treatment, but my wife urged me to use Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, which completely cured me." Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, LaGrippe, Pneumonia, Asthma, Hay Fever and maladies of the Chest, Throat and Lungs positively cured by this marvelous medicine. 50c. and $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed. Trial bottles free at S. J. Codori's drug store.

MADISON A. GARVIN.

ALTHOUGH ELECTED AS A DEMOCRAT BY THE VOTERS OF ADAMS COUNTY HE VOTES WITH THE QUAYITES.

ONLY SIX OF THE FORTY NINE DEMOCRATIC MEMBERS OF THE HOUSE REFUSE TO ACT WITH THEIR PARTY COLLEAGUES—GARVIN ONE OF THEM

Members From York, Adams and Schuylkill Counties Boldly Register Their Votes for the Quay Candidate

On the strength of repeated promises that he would act as a Democrat and would oppose Quayism, Madison A. Garvin received the votes of a large number of the people of Adams county as a candidate for the Legislature last November, and it was largely by reason of these promises that he was elected.

This same Madison A. Garvin last Tuesday voted for Quay's man Marshall for Speaker of the House, refusing to act with his Democratic colleagues and assuring Quay's control of the House.

We say—assuring Quay's control of the House, for but one vote would have changed the whole situation, and should Madison A. Garvin have voted with his Democratic brethren, acting thereby "as a Democrat," Quay's man would have been defeated.

Of the forty nine Democrats in the House forty three voted for the fusion candidate for Speaker, Gen. W. H. Koontz of Somerset county, one was absent, and five voted with the Machine. These five were:

M. A. GARVIN, Adams
F. S. LAKE, York
J. B. KAIN, York
H. B. SHUTT, York
W. J. GALVIN, Schuylkill

It was believed that the Democratic forces were as a unit against Quayism and there was great surprise, sorrow and chagrin when it was found that six of the number could not be depended upon, the sixth being Samuel H. Rothrock, of Mifflin, who absented himself.

Mr. McPherson, of this county, voted for Koontz, the anti Quay candidate.

The scene at the conclusion of the roll call on Speaker was dramatic in the extreme. The Machine members, who had cheered vociferously as each of the five Democrats cast his vote for Marshall were panic stricken by the announcement of Chief Clerk Jere Rex, who presided, that the result was a tie. The count of the tellers showed 100 votes for each candidate.

Instantly the hall rang with shouts for a verification of the ballot. As the names on each side were slowly read off it was discovered that a Marshall vote had been credited to Koontz while a Koontz man had been recorded for the machine candidate. These would not break the tie. Meanwhile, however, the tellers had discovered an error in their count by which Koontz had been given one vote too many.

The first break in the ranks of the Democrats and Insurgents, during the roll call, was when Lake, of York, spoke the name of Marshall with weak and timid voice. He was the first of the Democrats to vote for the Quay candidate.

When, a few seconds later, Galvin, of Schuylkill, another Democrat, voted for Marshall, the Quayites shouted insanely, embraced each other, threw hats and kerchiefs and papers in the air, while Independents and Democrats sat silent.

Both Galvin and Lake had taken part in much of the Democrat private counseling of Monday, and their action not only was a surprise, but it foreboded worse to come.

Garvin, of Adams, followed Galvin closely with a vote for Marshall. When Kain, of York, made a fourth Democratic vote for Marshall the Independents gave up the fight as lost, for they knew it would require the support of but five Democrats to win for Marshall, and that Shutt, another York member, would certainly flock with Lake and Kain.

Quay won the fight, but six men elected as Democrats did the job for him, and one of them was Madison A. Garvin, of Adams county.

A BITTER BLOW

"Yes, my boy, you have my consent to marry Edith," said the father after it had taken him an hour to find out what the young man wanted. "Yes, you can have her and get married as soon as you will."

"You have made me the happiest man in the world!" exclaimed Adolph.

"Very likely. I shall leave a check beside your wedding dinner plate. It will be signed, but not filled out."

"How noble and generous!"

"You can fill it out yourself. Don't be afraid of figures."

"How can I thank you?"

"Might as well make it a million as ten thousand."

"Oh, sir—"

"That's all, except my balance is only $220 and you'd better keep the check for the first baby to play with!"

NEIGHBOR'S BOY—I hear your pa has received a call to a bigger church at a larger salary?

Preacher's Boy—Yep.

Neighbor's Boy—Is he going to take it?

Preacher's Boy—Well, pa's prayin for light on the subject, but ma's packin' the goods and gettin' ready to move.—Denver Times

"SIR," said the young man, "I ask for your daughter's hand."

"Young man," replied the father, "I am not disposing of her in sections."—Ex.

CRUISE ABOARD THE U. S. SHIP ESSEX.

Frank R. Shriver Writes of His Travels in Foreign Waters.

FRANK R., A SON OF MR. AND MRS. DAVID R. SHRIVER, THIS PLACE, APPRENTICE IN THE U. S. NAVY, WRITES THE FOLLOWING

One of a draft of 103 boys made out at the U. S. Naval Training Station, Newport, R. I., I went aboard the Essex May 26th, 1900, expecting to leave May 30, but the ship was delayed until June 6.

When we steamed out of the harbor bidding farewell to the Training Station and to the beautiful soil of the United States, we had aboard the Essex 173 boys and about 110 seamen, landsmen and petty officers bound for Queenstown, Ireland. We had a fair wind nearly all the way across the Atlantic, except 3 or 4 days, when we had to steam instead of sail. The weather was fairly good, except 3 or 4 nights, when we encountered some terrific storms. All hands were called out of their hammocks to reef topsails and take in the light sails. The ship rolled and pitched, but the old square rigger stood the sea finely and we arrived at Queenstown, Ireland, June 30, it taking us 24 days to cross the wide, wide Atlantic. Queenstown has a fine harbor and upon our steaming in we were saluted by the English battleship Howe.

A few days after our arrival all the boys were given shore liberty and an excursion was organized. We went up to see the famous old Castle Blarney, which is 12 miles on the other side of Cork.

After all the boys had taken advantage of their shore liberty we hoisted sail and left Queenstown July 7 for Christiania, Norway. Steaming out of the harbor we directed our course north. We passed through the Strait of Dover, from which we could see England and France on each side. We then directed our course to the north until we reached Christiania, Norway, July 11.

In going through the English Channel the scenery was fine along the shore, such as the high limestone rocks and the green fields of grain. In the North Sea we met many fishing boats and merchant ships.

We had to go into the harbor of Christiana very slowly because of its narrow entrance, which is a long gulf or inlet with Christiania at the end of the gulf. We were given shore liberty at Christiana to see the city, which has many fine palaces and buildings.

On the 19th of July we hoisted sail and steamed out of the harbor early on the morning of the 21st. We sailed along the southern coast of Norway and Sweden and passed Copenhagen, Denmark, on our way to the Baltic Sea.

From there we directed our course northward for the Russian coast at the Gulf of Finland. Entering the Gulf we sailed eastward until the city of Kronstadt came within sight, which was about 10 o'clock at night July 26. We [illegible] anchor that night outside of the harbor and in the morning we sailed in among the ships of the large Russian fleet which are always stationed there for the defense of St. Petersburg.

Kronstadt is situated about 12 miles from St. Petersburg at a narrow channel on an island in the Gulf of Finland and is fortified by 5 or 6 large forts and a large fleet, which also serve as fortifications for St. Petersburg. We stayed here 7 days, leaving August 1 for Stockholm, Sweden, which is west of Kronstadt. It took us 3 days to go out of the Gulf of Finland and across the Baltic Sea to Stockholm, our ship arriving there August 4.

Stockholm is a beautiful city, built on a number of islands. It is quite lively and has a number of beautiful buildings and palaces. One of the most beautiful ones is the King's Palace, which may be seen from the harbor. It contains many large statues, paintings of art, and presents of gold and silver. We stayed at Stockholm a week during which time we were granted shore liberty to visit the city.

We left August 11th going to Copenhagen, Denmark, which took 3 days. Copenhagen is noted for its pleasure resorts, having many parks and sporting grounds, which are crowded with people at all times. The city is well fortified and has some beautiful churches and theatres.

After staying in the city's harbor 6 days we left on the morning of August 20 for Amsterdam, Holland, which is a 5 days' run on the schedule, but we made it in 4, arriving there the 24th. Amsterdam is connected with the sea by a canal, which is 18 miles long. To go up this canal we had to lower all boats, rig in the davits and brace the yards sharp up, so as to make it possible to pass through the narrow locks.

The land of Holland is very low and it is irrigated by means of small canals that run all through the land. The large windmills are used for pumping water and other work which the farmers have to do with them.

I went to see the city of Amsterdam. Most of the streets are canals and trade is carried on in boats. The streets are connected by means of bridges built over the canals. There are about 500 bridges in Amsterdam and nearly 100 islands, upon the latter of which the city is built. Amsterdam is a great, busy city and has a large wharf, which is filled with liners from all parts of Europe, Asia and Africa.

We stayed at Amsterdam a week, leaving there September 1 for Gravesend, England. Upon our arrival there September 2 we found the U. S. ships Hartford and Lancaster making 3 training ships of the U. S. Navy at Gravesend at once.

We stayed at Gravesend 11 days and while there the boys were granted leave to go up to see the city of London, which is about 20 miles from Gravesend. The boys all enjoyed their trip and the many beautiful buildings which they saw in London. It is a very fine city and is noted for its many manufactures, but it cannot compete with New York in traffic. Gravesend is where most all the ships stop that are going to London, because it is a suitable place to anchor.

We coaled ship September 12 and steamed out of the harbor the 13th for Havre, France. It took us a day to cross the English Channel and the Strait of Dover, our ship arriving at Havre, France, September 14, at noon, when the tide was high, because ships cannot enter the docks when the tide is low. Havre lies in a basin. We laid in the docks at Havre for 13 days.

Our next port was to have been Madeira, but our cruise was changed and two more cities put in. They were Plymouth, England, and Lisbon, Portugal.

We left Havre, France, September 26 and went across the English Channel for Plymouth. This was the third time we had crossed the English Channel and when out about half a day we got into one of its great storms and were obliged to steam towards land. We anchored at the southern part of the Isle of Wight, where we remained about 15 hours. There were also five or six other ships anchored there that had been in the same storm. After the storm had subsided we raised anchor and sailed to Plymouth, arriving there September 28. Plymouth has a fine harbor and is one of England's great naval stations. The city is strongly fortified by many forts and a fleet of warships.

We stayed at Plymouth only five days, leaving October 3 for Lisbon, Portugal. The first day out from Plymouth we had target practice. When it was over we got on our course and proceeded on through the English Channel. The next day we got into another of the Channel's storms just as we did in coming to Plymouth. This storm lasted three or four days and the boys were all glad when it was over. The ship rolled so that we were unable to scrub down decks. We had to eat our food on the deck and even if you didn't watch you would lose it when the ship rolled, because she seemed to stand up on one side. We passed across the outer edge of the Bay of Biscay and arrived at Lisbon, Portugal, October 10.

While at Lisbon we got orders to proceed on our itinerary cruise and to the west. We steamed out from Lisbon October [illegible] for Madeira, which is off the northern coast of Africa. We had a fair wind all the way and sailed until within about 100 miles of Madeira, when the wind got so calm we had to steam. We arrived at Funchal, Madeira, October 25. The town of Funchal is situated on the side of the mountains on the Island of Madeira. The climate is warm and healthy. The islands are noted for their wines and tropical fruits. Minerals are mined in the mountains of Madeira.

We sailed from Funchal, Madeira, October 31 for San Juan, Porto Rico, which, on our schedule, was a 25 days' run, but it took us 30 days. We had the trade winds most of the way and they were so steady that we did not have to trim the yards for a long time, but when about 800 miles from Porto Rico we had to steam the rest of the way, because the wind was too calm to sail. We then had [illegible] except for about a week when we had [illegible]. It was warm and healthy because we were in the tropics all the way, but you may bet we were glad to see land again. We went ashore at San Juan and had target practice [illegible] of the ship's crew. We also turned down, scrubbed [illegible] and painted ship for Admiral's inspection at Hampton Roads.

We coaled ship December 5 and left the harbor of San Juan December 8 for Hampton Roads. Flying homeward a happy set of boys we were to know that after a six months' cruise around the countries of Europe, we were again bound for the good old United States of America. We arrived at Hampton Roads December 16 after having made a cruise of 6 months and 10 days. We were a day behind in arriving at Hampton Roads. At Cape Hatteras we met with a storm that delayed us. We had Admiral's inspection December 17 and left on our furlough December 18.

THE JANUARY CENTURY

In fiction the chief interest in the January Century attaches to a complete story—ingenious and deftly provoking—by Dr Weir Mitchell—"A Comedy of Conscience." Other stories are Miss Margaret L. Knapp's "The Man Who Went to the Place"—a place in Connecticut, Charles W. Chesnutt's "The March of Progress," a tale of Afro-Americans, and "There's Only One New York," the first of a series of "Some Americans Abroad," by the young humorist, Charles Battell Loomis. Fiction invades the airy precincts of "In Lighter Vein" in the form of a second Policeman Flynn story—"He Objects to Promotion." Miss Rudge's young French nobleman and Mr Guiterman's "Mountain Lover" continue in their career of adventure, and Robert T. Hill, the geologist, in "Running the Canons of the Rio Grande," shows that one can be his own adventurer, if only he have courage and strength, the tale he tells is a record of recent explorations. Nothing in The Century's "Year of Romance" itself can exceed in interest the intimate story of the life in the besieged legations in Peking, as told in the January number. One of Mrs Conger's guests, Miss Cecile E. Payen, kept a diary, and the selections from it, here printed with illustrations, enable us to realize very vividly the mental sufferings of the legationers from the dawn of apprehension in May, through the storm and stress and anxious waiting of the next three months, to the fervent "Joy, joy! Saved at last!" of August 14 when 4,000 Sikhs marched into the British compound, followed by English troopers and 1,800 Americans under General Chaffee. A pair of articles that may be bracketed together as records of nineteenth century characteristics is "What the Government Costs," by Carroll D. Wright, Commissioner of Labor, and "The United States Patent Office," from the pen of the late E. V. Smalley. A different class will be appealed to by "Hamlet's Castle," wherein Jacob A. Riis, author of "How the Other Halves," writes of the castle of Kronborg, Elsinore, which he knew as a child and has revisited of late years. One of the many illustrations of this article is a facsimile of a page of the town record, chronicling a visit from Shakespeare's fellow actors whom Shakespeare himself may have accompanied. "Shadow and Sunlight" are the theme of Sir Walter Besant's current paper on East London. Poetry and art are as well represented as usual, the frontispiece of the number being Cole's engraving of Landseer's "The Shepherd's Chief Mourner."

The Twentieth Century.

We now stand at the threshold of the twentieth century, and the nineteenth is a thing of the past. It will, however, always be known as the century of invention and discovery, and among some of the greatest of these we can truthfully mention Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the celebrated remedy for all ailments arising from a disordered stomach, such as dyspepsia, indigestion, flatulence, constipation, nervousness and biliousness. It has been one of the greatest blessings to mankind during the past fifty years as a health builder. Many prominent physicians prescribe and recommend it. Take their advice, try a bottle and be convinced, but be sure to get the genuine, with our Private Revenue Stamp over the neck of the bottle.

A Little Wayfarer.

IT LACKED but three minutes of the time when the "Thunderbolt" express train would "pull out" of the big, noisy station in Philadelphia and go swiftly on its way to Chicago. The conductor, standing by the rear car, was glancing at his watch, when a shabbily dressed old woman came hurrying forward, leading by the hand a little girl of not more than eight years, oddly dressed in a green lawn frock and a bright pink calico apron, with a very clumsy ruffle of coarse white embroidery. She had a white sunbonnet lined with pink on her head, and she carried a queer little old handbag in one hand, while the other was held tightly in the old woman's grasp. Hurrying up to the conductor, the old woman said, quite excitedly, with a suggestion of tears in her voice:

"Be you the conductor of this train?"

"I am, madam."

"And this is the train for Shecawgo?"

"Yes, madam, this train goes to Chicago."

"Well, this little gal is goin' on it, an' fur fer, too. She is goin' clean out to River Bend, in Kansas, an' I want you to look after her fer as you go, an' tell the next conducter to do the same."

"Is the little girl going alone?"

"Yes, she is. I know that it is a mighty fur piece fer a little thing like her to be goin' alone, an' I sha'n't have a mite o' peace myself until I know that she is safe with her Uncle Hiram, there in River Bend. He has written that he would give her a home an' raise her as one of his own, if she could be got out there. I am her gran'ma, an' I'd keep the child myself if I could, but I'm goin' into an Old Ladies' Home myself, because I ain't got no place else to go and no money to live on. The little girl ain't got either father nor ma, an' I know that her Uncle Hiram will be good to her. Here is her ticket, an' she's got fifty cents tied up in a corner of her handkerchief to buy things to eat when the lunch I have put in a box in this satchel gives out. You got children o' your own?"

"Yes, four of them."

"Then I ain't afraid but what you'll be good to a poor little orphan girl goin' on a long journey alone. An' there's mebbe kind, motherly women on the train, would you mind speaking to them about little Jamie here, an' askin' 'em to kind o' look after her a little? Seems as if most any woman would be willin' to do that."

"I will see that she is cared for."

"It may be lucky. Everybody tells me that there will be plenty to see to her an' that I needn't worry none, but, all the same, I'll be turrible glad to hear that she has got there all right, pore little thing! You see I have sewed a card to her apron tellin' folks where she is goin' an' askin' 'em to be good to her."

The conductor glanced down and saw sewed fast to the child's apron a white card on which was written:

"This little girl is named Jamie May Ross. She is goin' alone to her Uncle Hiram Ross in River Bend, Kansas. Please be kind to her, for she is an orphan."

The conductor stooped and read the card, then he said, very earnestly and gently: "I will take the very best care of the little girl. Come, little one. It is time we were off."

The old lady took the child in her arms and kissed her wrinkled face, saying, tearfully, "Goodby, Jamie, child! Don't ever forget your old gran'ma. She won't ever forget you, an' she will write you a letter every month. Tell Uncle Hiram to write soon as you get there, an' you must write to gran'ma soon as you know how. Goodby, dearie."

When the conductor went through the train taking up tickets, after the train had left the station in Philadelphia, he found the little girl sitting very quiet in the seat in which he had placed her. She looked out of the window with an unsmiling face, and she turned toward the big conductor with a wistful look in her eyes, when he sat down beside her, after he had taken up all the tickets.

"So you are going away out to Kansas?" said the conductor.

"Yes sir."

"To live with your Uncle Hiram?"

"Yes sir. He says he has a little bossy calf that I can have all for my own, and he has a whole lot of little boys and girls that are my own cousins, and he says that I won't be a bit lonesome with them, and that they will let me ride on a little pony they have, and he has a little baby girl—just a teenty-tonty baby she is, and her name's Jamie, same as mine, and she hasn't any teeth she is so teenty, and there are lots of little dogs they call prairie dogs out on his place, and a baby colt, and my Auntie Ross says that when she bakes my little cousins a baby pie she will bake one for me. She has eight little boys and girls of her own, and, of course, they are Uncle Hiram's, too, and I will be [illegible] big lot, isn't it?"

"Yes, it is. You will have good times together."

"I expect so. Uncle Hiram, he says, the more the merrier. Don't you think that he must be a funny man?"

"He must be a good and kind man."

"Oh, he is! He is just awful kind, gran'ma says. He ain't no kin to her. She is my own gran'ma and he is my own uncle, and yet they ain't no kin to each other. Isn't that funny? You see, gran'ma is my mamma's mother, and Uncle Hiram is papa's brother, so that is how it is that they ain't no kin to each other. I never have seen Uncle Hiram, nor Aunt Mary, nor none of my cousins. When gran'ma set down and wrote that she would have to go into the Home, and that there was no one to take me, Uncle Hiram he wrote right back and said for me to come out there. He said his house was swarming now, but there was plenty of room in the house and in his heart and in Aunt Mary's for a little girl without any father or mother, and me his own brother's little girl, so I am going out there."

Before the train had gone fifty miles every passenger in the car had seen the card sewed to the little girl's apron, and Jamie did not lack attention. An old lady sitting across the aisle came and sat with Jamie for a long time, and a motherly looking woman in the seat behind the little girl had said:

"I am going out across the State of Kansas myself, and I will see that you get on the right train in Chicago. Here is some candy for you."

A travelling man opened his sample case and brought Jamie a round wooden box of beads of all colors, saying, as he did so: "I can get another box in Chicago."

He had hardly reached his seat when a very severe looking man whom one would never have suspected of being kind hearted, came down the aisle with a lovely doll, beautifully dressed, in his hand, and he said, as he handed the doll to Jamie: "Here is a doll you can have, little one. I have a little girl of about your size, and I was taking the doll to her; but I find that I shall have to stay a day in Chicago, and I can easily get her another one."

Oranges, apples, candy, cake, nuts and popcorn were brought to the little girl in such quantities that it is doubtful if she would have lived to reach her Uncle Hiram.

MADISON A. GARVIN.

What need be said with reference to Madison A. Garvin, the Democratic member of the Legislature from this county who voted for Quay's candidate for Speaker of the House last Tuesday, can be said, for the present, in few words. He was elected by the voters of Adams county because they believed that he was a man on whom they could depend. In the hour of trial he failed them.

Mr. Garvin stood before his fellow-citizens during the last campaign not only as a candidate on the Democratic ticket, but also as a man who had given his word that he would act as a Democrat if elected and would oppose Quay's cause. By giving his promise that he would oppose the re-election of Quay to the United States Senate he virtually and at the same time gave like promise that he would not aid or abet Quayism, Quayism and Quay's candidacy for the United States Senate being in the public mind one and the same thing, as Mr. Garvin fully knew.

We understand that Mr. Garvin seeks to justify his action by saying that he did not promise to vote against Quay's candidate for Speaker specifically, and by saying, further, that he did vote for him because the opponents of Quay would not give assurances that they would favor a large appropriation for a monument in the Public Square of Gettysburg.

Mr. Garvin could not the more surely insult the people of Adams county or of Gettysburg, nor could he more clearly show his doubt of their intelligence than by offering reasons such as these, for Mr. Garvin electioneered as an anti-Quay man; he made no reservations; and we believe that we are safe in saying that the people of Adams county do not want a monument in the Public Square of their County Town gotten by the means Mr. Garvin suggests. He but adds insult to injury when he makes excuses which indicate a belief that the citizens of this county do not know right from wrong.

We can say in his defense but one thing—that the people from whom he took advice may have seemed to him to be his friends. They were not, as he has by this time certainly discovered; and though nothing will excuse him, it may be said in his favor that doubtless great pressure was brought to bear upon him.

If the corruption of others was in any way an influence back of Mr. Garvin's action he can do no better than to expose them as the real offenders against the people.

A BAD BEGINNING.

From the Phila. Record of the 2nd.

Probably the most deplorable happening in the United States yesterday—the first day of the century—was the organization of the Pennsylvania House of Representatives by the open enemies of good government. A candidate for Speakership of recognized character [illegible] was defeated by a candidate [illegible] who had nothing to commend him. The latter had been named by Mr. Quay for the place. That elected him. The humiliation of defeat is the greater for the reason that it could not have been accomplished except by the aid of five Democrats who at the last moment betrayed their party and their State by voting with the enemies of both. The names of these men are:

M. A. GARVIN, Adams.
L. S. FAKE, York.
J. B. KAIN, York.
H. B. SHUTT, York.
W. J. GALVIN, Schuylkill.

Whether or not their initial treachery, which has thrown the organization of the House into the hands of Mr. Quay—will be followed up by voting to elect him to the United States Senate has not yet been disclosed. They have done what they could to strengthen his hands in advance, to baffle and defeat projected reform legislation and to add to the political dishonor of the Commonwealth. When they shall go back among the constituents whom they have so basely misrepresented they will have cause to rue the day that they were born.

From the Phila. North American of the 2nd.

The machine caucuses and the organization of the House at Harrisburg yesterday demonstrate the truth of the announcement made by The North American on November 7—that an anti-Quay Legislature had been chosen at the election on November 6.

Mr. Quay announced simultaneously that he had triumphed and would have 130 Republicans in his caucus. Last night he had just 123 or four fewer than enough to elect. And it was only with the aid of Democratic votes that the Quay machine was enabled to organize the House by a majority of one. The machine could muster but 25 Republican votes.

The capture of the House, though it showed the weakness of the machine in Republican support, was, nevertheless, a surprise and disappointment to the anti-machine forces. The machine caucus of the night before, attended by only 96 members, instead of the 102 claimed in advance, seemed to make it certain that the organization would be in the hands of Quay's opponents. The Democratic leaders were sure of their followers, and pledged an unbroken line. Relying upon these assurances, undoubtedly sincere, the anti-Quay Republicans were confidents that the House would be theirs.

Six Democrats deceived their leaders, deserted their party and disgraced themselves by giving the victory to the Quay machine. Here are their names:

M. A. GARVIN, Adams.
L. S. FAKE, York.
HARRY B. SHUTT, York.
JOHN B. KAIN, York.
WILLIAM J. GALVIN, Schuylkill.

The sixth Democrat lent equally efficient aid and comfort to the machine by slipping out of the chamber and escaping a vote, though he had answered the previous roll-call. This slinker's name is:

SAMUEL H. ROTHROCK, Mifflin.

Classed with these Democrats are:

GEORGE C. HILL, Susquehanna.
GEORGE B. TIFFANY, Susquehanna.

These Republicans, though pledged against Quay, and attending the anti-Quay meetings during the day, entered the Quay caucus at night.

In bright contrast to the course of the six Democrats and these recreant Republicans is the behavior of those who have kept their word. Their fidelity can be appreciated fully only by those who understand the tremendous pressure which they have resisted—a pressure that is at once political, social and pecuniary.

Men who defy the Quay machine risk a vengeance that pursues them into their business, and even their domestic lives. Respect, profound respect, is due poor men who wave aside the tempter and prefer hard work with honesty to luxury with dishonor.

Mr. Quay was beaten at the election in November. It has been proved at Harrisburg that he has not now a majority of the members of the Legislature which organized yesterday. He can become a United States Senator at this session in one way only—by the purchase of enough votes to convert his minority into a majority.

From the Harrisburg Patriot.

Had these Democrats remained loyal to their party Koontz would not only have been elected speaker, but the Democrats would have been given an equal share of the house officers and employes and the committee honors. The machine managers boasted for a month before the organization of the legislature that Quay's political life would be saved by Democrats and their predictions have been verified.

From York county, from Schuylkill, from Adams and from Mifflin poured in messages last night and yesterday scoring the deserters and telling them their political life is over. They are being spurned by their former political associates and not a few of the Democratic and anti-Quay members refuse to speak to them when they pass them in the halls or on the streets. Neither have the regular Republicans anything for them. One of the machine leaders referring to the deserters said: "We needed them, we knew where to find them, we used them, we may need them again. That's all."

The deserters are "out of it" entirely. They have nothing in common with the Republicans, the Democrats ignore them and the "insurgents" have nothing but infamy to heap upon their heads.

The third Tuesday of February next will fall on the 19th, and nominations for borough and township officers must be made eighteen days before the day of election, or not later than Friday, February 1. It has been the custom throughout the county to hold the spring nominations on Saturday, and if followed this year should not be held later than Saturday, January 26, as the following Saturday will be too late to comply with the election laws.

Benjamin F. Welty, one of the two Republicans from Franklin county in the Legislature, announces that he will cast his vote for Mr. Quay for United States Senator. Mr. Welty did not participate in the caucus at Harrisburg on the night when Mr. Quay was the unanimous choice of the 123 Republicans present, and his name is on the pledge signed by the anti-Quay legislators.

In language that admitted of no misconstruction Representative W. T. Mahon, Republican of the Third district, on Saturday set at rest the persistently circulated reports that he would vote for Colonel Quay for United States Senator. "I am Anti-Quay now and do not intend to change. I have no dealings with the Machine party, and do not know how such a report could have been started."

20TH CENTURY GREETED

With Ringing of Bells and Blowing of Whistles—Services in the Churches.

The advent of the Twentieth Century was the occasion of a hearty and noisy greeting by the younger as well as older citizens of Gettysburg. From early in the evening until long after midnight could be heard the sounds of pistols and firearms of all descriptions. As the hour of midnight approached the noise and din increased in volume and intensity, the church bells pealed out joyously, whistles blew, fire crackers exploded and the Nineteenth Century was a thing of the past; the Twentieth Century was launched upon its career of usefulness and triumph.

The G. A. Band was also in evidence and discoursed sweet music in Center Square as the town clock struck off the hour of midnight.

Taken all in all we doubt if any previous year was ushered in with as much spirit and enthusiasm as that which so auspiciously marked the opening of the Twentieth Century.

In St. James Lutheran church an interesting Watch Meeting Service was conducted. Luther Sieber, leader, gave an interesting talk on the events of the past century and the hopes of the future. Rev. A. R. Steck, Rev. P. J. Shriver, Robert B. McClean, Geo. W. Barbehenn, Miss Jennie Montfort and others made short addresses

In St. Francis Xavier church midnight High Mass was sung, Rev. T. J. Crotty, Celebrant. Preceding the Mass Leo F. Stock sang "The Holy City." The musical program consisted of Father Ganns' Mass in D, Offertory—Adeste Fideles, and concluding with the "Te Deum." Father Crotty spoke on the truths to be drawn from the Encyclical of Pope Leo XIII concerning the consecration of all christians to their Redeemer. About 300 partook of Holy Communion.

TOWN COUNCIL MEETING.

The January meeting of the Town Council was held in the Council room on the evening of New Year's day, all the members being present.

The Council being without a presiding officer, owing to the resignation of Mr. Garvin, of the Second ward, Mr. Buehler, of the First ward, was elected President pro tem, on motion of Mr. Tawney. The reading of the minutes was dispensed with, owing to the absence of the Secretary, who was detained at home on account of illness. The Chair appointed Robert B. McClean Secretary pro tem.

The Light Committee reported lights out during a total of 894 hours and recommended a reduction of $14.90, which was adopted by the Council.

The Stable Fund Committee reported concerning the distribution of the fund. All [illegible] was paid out and about sixty [illegible] families were benefited by the distribution. The members of the Committee gave an itemized account of the distribution. On motion of Mr. Tawney the report was received and the Committee discharged.

The Ordinance Committee reported that it was unanimously opposed to the enactment of the proposed Market House Ordinance.

Several pavements in town were reported out of repair. The Secretary was instructed to notify the property owners in question.

Burgess Eicholtz reported that quite a number of tramps are in the habit of making a rendezvous of Jacob Raffensperger's barn at the eastern end of the borough limits, much to the annoyance of people in that locality, and suggested that something should be done to remedy the matter. Council discussed the question and the matter was left to the discretion of the Burgess.

CLASS OF '96 RE-UNION.

The Arendtsville High School was very nicely entertained at a reception given by Mr. Daniel C. Jacobs at his home near Arendtsville, Dec. 29, 1900 During the evening the class history was read, after which appropriate remarks were made by various members of the class, including an address by Prof. P. M. Harbold, of First Pennsylvania State Normal School, Millersville, Pa., a former teacher of the graduating class. Those present were:

Misses Alma Miller, Mary G. Peters, and Messrs. Daniel C. Jacobs, R. A. Smelser, C. A. Sheely, N. L. Minter and Allen B. Trostle, members of the class; also Misses Dora E. Hershey, Annie K. Sheely, Irma R. Bream, and Mr. H. W. Trostle, as friends of the host. T.

A PROTEST.

LETTER FROM A SUBSCRIBER IN REFERENCE TO THE RECENT POLITICAL ESCAPADES OF A MEMBER OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES FROM ADAMS COUNTY.

GETTYSBURG, PA.,
Jan. 7th, 1901.

MR EDITOR:

Permit me, through the columns of your valuable paper, to present a few thoughts concerning the unfortunate state of affairs political in which the Democrats of Adams find themselves placed at this time by reason of the strange and, as we think, utterly indefensible position very recently assumed by the Honorable Madison A. Garvin, the alleged Democratic member of the present House of Representatives from Adams county.

During the entire time of Mr Garvin's candidacy last year, covering a period of five or six months, he was fervent and unceasing in his claims and professions of true Democracy.

The Democratic voters of the county were loyal and faithful to him in a remarkable degree at the election in November.

Many were the congratulations extended to him by his Democratic friends throughout the county when his election was assured. To some of these he gave voluntary and hearty assurances of his devotion to true Democratic principles as enunciated in the National, State and County platforms, and also of his determination and purpose to do his utmost in behalf of honest and economic legislation during the present session of the General Assembly. A change comes. Both Houses of the Legislature are required to assemble for organization biennially on the first day of January separately for the election of President of the Senate and of Speaker of the House, besides some other preliminary business, after which both Houses meet in joint session for the election of United States Senator, if such is necessary.

As a preliminary to the work of both Houses, separately and jointly, it has long been customary for the members of the several great political parties to meet the night before for organization and for determination of a course of action subsequently. These meetings are known as caucuses and would seem to be right and proper. Meetings of this kind were held by both parties at Harrisburg on Monday night of last week.

At the stalwart Republican caucus the principal business transacted was the placing in nomination for Speaker of the House Hon. Wm. T. Marshall, of Beaver, a close friend of Mr. Quay. At the Democratic or Fusion caucus General W. H. Koontz, of Bedford, was named for Speaker to be voted for the following day.

At an early hour on Tuesday morning last, Jan. 1, unpleasant rumors began to circulate freely here to the effect that Mr. Garvin, of Adams, failed to attend the Democratic caucus. This was startling and ominous in the extreme. The unwelcome news was confirmed on the arrival of the mail trains a few hours later. This was bad enough, but worse was in store for the chagrined and mortified constituents of the only Democratic member from Adams.

Time wore on. The House of Representatives met for organization Marshall and Koontz were placed in nomination for Speaker by their respective friends designated for that duty. The voting begins. Name after name is called amid the almost breathless silence, and the responses are in strict accordance with party affiliations. Now Koontz would lead a vote or two, and now Marshall would forge ahead a vote or two.

The first great cheer from the Stalwarts came when Fake, of York, (suggestive name!) spoke the name of Marshall with weak and timid voice. He was the first of the Democrats to vote for the Quay candidate. A look of dismay overspread the faces of the Democrats and Fusionists. Presently Galvin, of Schuylkill, another Democrat, voted for Marshall. It was then that the Stalwarts began to be wildly jubilant. Both Galvin and Fake had taken part in the Democratic counsels of the day before, and their action was a great surprise.

Garvin, of Adams, followed Galvin closely with his vote for Marshall. Again a wild scene is enacted by the Stalwarts. Kain and Shutt, of York, two other Democrats, later gave their votes to Marshall, making the Beaver man's total vote 100 as against 99 for Koontz.

The Democrats who gave direct aid to Quay in the organization of the House doubtless meant to accomplish Quay's election to the Senate.

Mr. Garvin's vote alone would have changed the result and would have placed General Koontz in the Speaker's chair. He therefore had every incentive and reason, as a Democrat, to vote for Koontz, as the Democrats would by that means have gained, with the aid of the Independent Republicans, the control of the many important Committees, and would, in addition, have secured a fair division in the appointment of the numerous subordinate officers of the body.

We write thus in sorrow rather than in anger, feeling assured that Mr. Garvin will live to regret his action in the matter referred to. If he shall forfeit the respect and confidence of his Democratic friends for his ill considered course in bolting the Democratic Legislative caucus a week ago, and for his bold and brazen support of the Quay candidate for Speaker the following day, thereby helping to continue the carnival of crime and debauchery in Pennsylvania's public life, he will have himself to blame.

With this we drop the subject, leaving Mr. Garvin to his own reflections. His legislative career cannot fail to be one of unfading memory.

A DEMOCRAT.

McKNIGHTSTOWN NOTES.

JAN. 5.—Interesting Christmas exercises were held in the Reformed and Flohr's Lutheran churches. All that took part acquitted themselves excellently.

George Cromwell and wife, of Baltimore, are spending the winter here with Mrs. Cromwell's father, Dr. R. Elderdice. Mr. Cromwell needs rest and we hope he will be able to recuperate during his stay in our village.

The Flohr's congregation presented its pastor, Rev. D. T. Koser, an excellent black fur robe, and his wife, Sadie E. Koser, a fine tea set. It has been a number of years since this congregation has failed to remember its pastor in some substantial way at the Christmas season.

The week of prayer will be observed at Flohr's church.

Good work appears to be done this season in all the schools of the community. Very good roads make regular attendance possible.

Mr. A. I. Weidner, a member of the State Board of Agriculture, has been holding Farmers' Meetings at Fairfield and Arendtsville. These meetings are very helpful to the farmer, and were especially so because of the very good instructors in attendance this year. Mr. H. Riddlemoser, of our village, is a member of the Local Committee. Let us have a meeting here too. We certainly have one of the best farming districts of the county, and deserve recognition.

Mrs. Daniel Snyder is not well at this time. OBSERVER.

THE LEGISLATURE.

MARSHALL ELECTED SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE.

With the Open Assistance of Five Democrats Quay's Man Wins—Interesting Information in General—Democrats Said to be for Guffey for U. S. Senator.

William T. Marshall, of Allegheny, Quayite and anti-fusion candidate for Speaker of the House of Representatives, was elected last Tuesday afternoon by fusion of ninety-five machine Republicans and five Democrats.

Representative L. Fake, Harry B. Shutt and John B. Kain, of York; William J. Galvin, of Schuylkill, and Madison A. Garvin, of Adams, are the five Democrats who broke away from the decision of their party caucus, and by joining the Quay forces in the House made Marshall's election possible.

Keyser, of Philadelphia, nominated Marshall for Speaker, and Hosack, of Allegheny, presented Koontz, whose nomination was seconded by Dixon, of Elk, in behalf of the Democrats. Speaker Marshall's address was brief and of general terms.

The scene in the House was one of intense feeling and excitement. The hall of Representatives was crowded to suffocation. An attempt was made for a time to exclude from the floor all except members ex-members, clerks and pages, but that was soon abandoned, and visiting statesmen, partisans of Democrats and the two Republican factions streamed in and filled every vacant space outside of seats of members.

Members and spectators impatiently awaited the beginning of the Speakership contest. The routine of calling the House to order, the chaplain's prayers, the reading of the certificates of election, the taking of the oath by members by swearing on the Bible, by up-lifted hand or by affirmation, was all tiresome to them in the presence of the great test of strength.

Never before in the calling of a roll of 200 names in such circumstances did two contestants run so closely neck and neck. Now Koontz would lead a vote or two and now Marshall would forge ahead a vote or two. Occasionally a little cheer would break forth as some well-known member voted for this candidate or that. At first the force of the cheering was upon the Koontz side as Independents or Democrats showed that they were closely lined up.

Marshall was declared elected by a majority of one, which called forth an exhibition of wild Quay rejoicing continuing for several minutes.

QUAY CHOSEN BY CAUCUS.

At nine o'clock Tuesday evening Senator Grady, chairman of the joint Republican caucus for the naming of a candidate for United States Senator, called it to order. The caucus was held in the hall of the House of Representatives, and when the gavel fell calling for silence every seat in the House, including those in the gallery, was occupied. In addition, the aisles and lobby were crowded with Quay adherents, who were in a jubilant mood by reason of the election earlier in the day of President pro tem. Snyder, of the Senate, and Representative Marshall as Speaker of the House of Representatives.

All of the Republican members of the House who were present had voted at the house session for Representative Marshall for Speaker with the exception of Representative McPherson, of Adams county, and Hill and Tiffany, of Susquehanna.

Senator Grady declaring nominations in order for United States Senator, Representative Thomas V. Cooper, of Delaware county, rose and nominated Ex-Senator Quay.

Representative McPherson, of Adams county, nominated John Stewart, of Franklin county, and Representative Garner, of Schuylkill county, nominated John Dalzell.

Representative Bliss, of Delaware, asked for a roll call, "in order to prevent any mistake being made in the answering of names, as was charged against the caucus of the Republican members of the House Mon. night," after which speech Senator Grady ordered that every man as his name was called, rise while announcing his vote.

The result of the roll call showed 120 for Quay, 2 for Dalzell and one for Stewart. On motion the vote was made unanimous, 123 for Quay.

DEMOCRATS FOR GUFFEY.

Although no caucus of Democratic members of the Legislature to nominate a candidate for Senator of the United States will be held until a date near the time for the beginning of the balloting there is not the least doubt that the nominee of the Democrats will be Colonel James M. Guffey, of Pittsburg.

Each one of the Democrats who on Tuesday voted for the Republican, Marshall, for Speaker, has given assurance that he will heartily support Colonel Guffey from start to finish, it is stated.

INDEPENDENTS CAUCUS.

The Independent Republicans held a conference following the adjournment of the House Tuesday afternoon, and the unanimous sentiment favored a more vigorous prosecution than ever, if that be possible, of the battle against the election of Ex-Senator Quay.

A sufficient number of anti-Quay pledges were assured to defeat Quay, even if the five defective Democrats of Tuesday should decide to vote for him.

Assurance is given by those Democrats, however, that they will stand with their party on the Senatorial question. They met the Democratic leaders Tuesday evening and declared to a man that they did not intend to vote for a Republican for the Senate, reserving the right to vote as they please if an attempt be made to swing the Democrats to the support of an Independent Republican.

THE CANDIDATES FOR SENATOR.

Fourteen proposed candidates for United States Senator, eight Republicans and six Democrats, were formally nominated in Tuesday's session of the Senate and House The following nominees were made by the Republicans:

M. S. Quay, nominated by Senator Grady and Representative Keyser, both of Philadelphia.

George F. Huff, by Representative Savage, of Philadelphia.

John Stewart, by Senator Henry, of Philadelphia.

John Dalzell, by Senator Flinn, and Representative Scott, both of Allegheny.

William Connell, by Senator Drury, of Luzerne, and Representative Reynolds, of Lackawanna.

Charles Emory Smith, by Representative Taylor, of Bradford.

Henry C. McCormick, by Representative Godcharles, of Northumberland.

John Howard Harris, of Union county, by Representative Johnson, of Union.

The Democrats named the following:

George A. Jenks, by Representative Maloney, of Venango.

James M. Guffey, by Senator Haines, of York, and Representative Dixon, of Elk.

Robert E. Pattison, by Senator Wentz, of Montgomery, and Representative Castnor, of Lycoming.

Simon P. Wolverton, by Senator Herbst, of Berks, and Representative Fisher, of Northumberland.

W. U. Hensel, by Representative Brennan, of Wayne.

William M. Nelson, of Wayne, by Representative Fuerth of the same county.

The Legislature adjourned until Monday evening, January 14. On the next day each House will vote separately on the United States Senatorship, the members to divide their favors among the nominees made Tuesday unless there shall be one or more withdrawals, or the Democratic caucus to be held on the night before shall unite on one candidate.

QUAYITES FEARFUL.

By their actions the managers of the Quay Machine betray some anxiety about the complete success of their plans to re-elect Colonel Quay on January 15. They are boldly claiming that they have assurances of 132 votes for the "Old Man" on the first ballot, but will not admit that any further aid is expected from the Democratic side.

Instead of being depressed by the failure of the fusion scheme to organize the House, the insurgents are in good spirits, and insist that they positively have enough votes to block the path of Quay. They will not believe that any Democrats will dare to vote directly for Quay, and are inclined to the opinion that the contract entered by those who supported Marshall will terminate with the complete organization of the House.

Little attention was paid to the organization of Senate. The defection of Washburn had stopped the fight against Dr. Snyder, and he was chosen President pro tem. with practically no opposition. All the Democrats except Haines, of York, voted for Senator Miller, of Cumberland. Haines voted for Snyder, but when he realized that his help was not needed he changed to Miller.

COMPLIMENT TO MR. MILLER.

The Carlisle Sentinel of Wednesday contained the following which will be read with interest by those who know Mr. Miller:

Ex-Collector R. E. Shearer has rented the Mansion House to Mr. Harry Miller, of Gettysburg, Pa., who will take charge Feb. 11, 1901. Mr. Miller needs no introduction to the traveling public or to the citizens of Cumberland county. Born in Dillsburg, he has spent the greater part of his life in conducting hotels at Mechanicsburg, Gettysburg and for some time conducted the leading hotel at Lancaster, Pa. Mr. Miller is a man in the prime of life, of temperate habits and his reputation as an all round hotel man and a caterer second to none was the cause of his securing a lease of the hotel.

Mr. Miller will refurnish the hotel from cellar to attic in the latest style and most comfortable manner and we may look forward to what Carlisle has long needed, a modern hotel in the best location, furnished in the latest style and run in an up to date manner by a courteous and able hotel man.

Help... Nature

Babies and children need proper food, rarely ever medicine. If they do not thrive on their food something is wrong. They need a little help to get their digestive machinery working properly.

SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL WITH HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME & SODA will generally correct this difficulty.

If you will put from one-fourth to half a teaspoonful in baby's bottle three or four times a day you will soon see a marked improvement. For larger children, from half to a teaspoonful, according to age, dissolved in their milk, if you so desire, will very soon show its great nourishing power. If the mother's milk does not nourish the baby, she needs the emulsion. It will show an effect at once both upon mother and child.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

DEATHS.

Mrs. Sarah C. Neely, widow of James L. Neely, dec'd., and mother of the late J. C. Neely, Esq., of Gettysburg, and of Hon. J. U. Neely, of Fairfield, died at her home in Straban township, near Hunterstown, last Wednesday night, in her 94th year.

Those who survive to mourn her loss, together with a large circle of friends and acquaintances, are one son, Hon. J. U. Neely, of Fairfield, and two daughters, Misses Margaret and Josephine, who resided with their mother at the old home.

The funeral took place on Saturday morning, at 10 o'clock, with interment at Hunterstown burial ground, Rev. D. W. Woods, Jr., preaching the sermon. The bearers were William A. McIlhenny, James Bell, Jacob W. Taughinbaugh and William Yeatts.

Mrs. Neely was well known, as a member of a prominent family in our county, as well as because of the many friends she had made during a long life of usefulness. She was a cousin of A. J. Cassatt, of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Scott H. Billmeyer, a well known and highly respected young business man of Gettysburg, died at his home on W. Middle street about 8 o'clock Saturday evening after a short illness from pneumonia, aged 32 years, 6 months and 29 days.

The deceased came to Gettysburg from Uniontown, Md., in 1888 and formed a partnership in the livery business with John E. Plizer.

He was a member of the Independent Order of Mechanics, of Uniontown, and the I. O. O. F. and Jr. O. U. A. M., of this place.

He is survived by his wife, nee Miss Mary Stevenson, of near Westminster, Md., and one daughter Alice. Beside these, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse F. Billmeyer and a sister, Miss Cora, of Uniontown, Md., a sister, Mrs. Jennie Powers and a brother Clarence, of Baltimore, also survive him.

Short services were held at the house at 7.45 o'clock this morning, Rev. A. R. Steck officiating, after which his remains were taken to Westminster via W. M. R. R. His body will be taken to Krider's Church where interment will be made.

On Saturday about noon Miss Matilda Buehler died at her residence on Chambersburg street, from the infirmities of old age, in her 91st year.

She was the last member of a large and influential family of Gettysburg, children of Samuel H. Buehler, deceased. Her brothers were Alexander D., Colonel Chas. H., David A., and George L. Buehler.

Services were held at the house yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock, after which interment was made in Evergreen Cemetery, nephews of the deceased, as follows, acting as pall bearers: Guyon H., A. Danner, S. Henry, L. H. Buehler, all of this place; Prof. Huber Grey Buehler, of Lakeville, Conn., and David Buehler, of Harrisburg.

Mrs. ALVINA S., widow of the late Joseph A. Wierman, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. E. Ramsey, in Chicago, on Friday from the infirmities of old age, aged 81 years, 10 months and 20 days.

Born and raised at Wierman's Mill, this county, she spent the greater part of her life there. During the past three years, however, she has made her home with her son Nicholas L., in this place. Last fall, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Emma, she went to Chicago expecting to spend some time with her daughter, Mrs. J. E. Ramsey, at whose home her death occurred.

She is survived by three sons and three daughters, viz: Nicholas L., of Gettysburg; E. M., Joseph W., Miss Emma and Mrs. J. E. Ramsey, of Chicago, and Mrs. L. E. Fahy, of Homestead, Pa.

The remains were brought to Gettysburg yesterday and taken to the home of her son Nicholas.

Services were held at the house at 10 o'clock this morning, Rev. A. R. Steck officiating; interment in Evergreen Cemetery.

G. W. Meals, whose body was interred at York on the afternoon of the 3rd of January, was a Gettysburgian by birth.

On the 20th day of April, 1861, he left home for Baltimore where he enlisted in the 4th U. S. Artillery.

After the battle of Sharpsburg, Mr. McIlhenny, co-editor of the Star & Banner, wrote from the seat of war, and had printed in same paper, "To our fellow townsman, G. W. Meals, belongs the honor of firing the first shell at the enemy."

He was also engaged in the battle of Gettysburg, under General Slocum, was stationed on Cemetery Hill as well as Culp's Hill. While on the former hill his artillery was obliged to fight across their cannon with fence rails.

After his three year term of service had expired he re-enlisted for three years more. Both discharges speak of him as a brave soldier and exemplary in his conduct. P.

Seated in a chair in the Penn Park Hotel, York, Jacob J. Noel, of that place, was found dead between 4.30 and 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Mr. Myers, proprietor of the hotel attempted to arouse him at supper time, when it was discovered he was dead.

Coroner Brickley was notified and empaneled a jury which rendered a verdict to the effect that death was due to organic heart trouble.

The deceased, aged about 55, served in Co. B, 71st Regiment Illinois Vol., war of the rebellion.

His body was brought to this place Friday and taken to the home of his wife's mother, Mrs. Crosta, from where the funeral took place yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock with honors of war.

He is survived by his wife, nee Miss Emma C. Crosta, and Mrs. Harriet McCleary, a sister, and Mrs. Geo. E. Stock, a step-sister, both of this place.

SOMETHING ABOUT TILE AND TILING.

The great importance of tiling is plain to all who may be blessed with level, fertile fields. It matters not what kind of soil you have, if the subsoil be impervious or imperfect in the porous qualities necessary to the free passage of air and water, some means must be supplied by which an artificial current is established so that the sour gases of the lower soil and subsoil may be carried down and out and in turn replaced by fresh supplies from the air and surface moisture, thereby establishing an ever present supply of fresh air and moisture, which are necessary to the successful growth of crops. The object of this article is not to discuss the subject, but to point out the errors committed in the use of tile. Further, this article is not intended to teach, but to remind those contemplating drainage of a few vital points that in the hurry and worry of this most disagreeable work of the farm might be overlooked. The out-let from the laid tile must be free, so that no part of the emerging current of water may be retarded and find a lodging place around the mouth of the tile. When laying the tile, see that the ground in the bottom of the ditch has a true plane; that is, the water that should be allowed to run through the ditch before the tile is laid should run of an equal depth over the bottom, of whatever length the ditch may be. Allow no dead water at any point, be it ever so little, as dead water in the bottom of a ditch is a true indicator of what will be in the bottom of the tile after it is laid, and dead water in the tile not only lessens its capacity but increases the chances of failure by providing lodging places for any debris that may happen to get into the tile. The tile to be laid should be of a size in proportion to the length of the ditch, of course decreasing as the ditch advances every 400 to 600 feet. To illustrate: Say our main ditch is eighty rods, with laterals not over twenty rods, in this particular case we will suppose that no great amount of water is collected on higher fields which would run on to the eighty-rod field in question. Assuming that each size named would receive two or more 4 inch laterals, we would commence laying 8-inch tile for the first twenty rods, seven inch for the next twenty rods, six-inch for the third twenty rods, five-inch for the fourth twenty rods, to the last laterals, and four-inch for the remaining distance. All laterals of not over twenty rods in length should be of four-inch tile; over twenty to forty rods, 5-inch at its lower and four-inch at its upper section. Never use less than four-inch tile in any important work, as the capacity when divided into one-third air and two thirds water, if the tile is not laid in an absolutely perfect manner, can be of little value, especially as the chances of being stopped up always increase with reduction in size of tile. After the work has so far progressed, the ditch must be filled up, and this is where the greatest errors are committed. I have seen so-called tile experts fill a tile ditch as carelessly as if they were filling up a wash or burying a dead horse, without the least regard for fortune results. Were I doing the work, if the material were accessible, I would proceed as follows: Procure a stick of desired length and strength; fasten to it a V-shaped trough, say three feet long when finished, resembling a brick-[illegible] with the end left out. This tool [illegible] vary in length with the size of tile [illegible] depth of ditch. Next procure a [illegible] load of gravel, cinders, which are no [illegible] a long-handled square shovel [illegible] ending the gravel or cinders. [illegible] above mentioned hod-[illegible] by implement firmly down on the [illegible] and hold the tile so there is no possible chance for it to be moved until an equal amount of material is placed on each side of it, then the hod may be withdrawn and four or six inches of the porous material placed on top; then proceed as before until the ditch is all treated in this way. If your soil is of stiff or hardpan nature, the nearer the ditch is filled with porous material the better and more work the tile will accomplish, providing the danger from surface washing is not too great. The depth the tile should be laid is very important. If your land is of a muck or porous nature, the utility of the tile increases with the depth; but if of a reverse nature, without artificial or porous material supplied, depth would be a hindrance to its usefulness. To illustrate: I have seen tile buried in stiff clay soils from three to four feet that proved of no benefit whatever, whereas if it had been placed just below frost it would have been the means of reclaiming land that was otherwise of no use. Again, in tiling crawfish land we may not even hope to accomplish anything by deep tiling without a good fall and some good porous material around the tile. In the latter case the ditch had better be filled with straw or fine brush and let freezing and thawing do the rest of the filling. In this way the nature of the soil in the ditch is completely changed and will act as an absorbent to draw water to the tile below that would otherwise be useless. I would suggest that in every instance, if at all accessible, gravel or cinders be used around the tile to make it secure before leaving it. Where there is no material of the kind available, while digging the ditch throw the surface spading on one side to use in place of cinders around the tile; in this way the chance is lessened of the tile becoming useless by the hardpan clogging around it. To close I will say there is no work on the farm where the liberal and deliberate use of intelligent thought carried into practice is more fully repaid, or on the other hand where there is so much money needlessly squandered by leaving the care of it to incompetent hands, as in the important work of drain tiling.—M. K. in the Prairie Farmer.

THE LOG OF A SHIP.

A ship's log is an instrument for measuring the rate at which the vessel is going and consists of three parts—viz, the log chip, the log line and the log glass. The principle is simply this:

A light substance thrown from the vessel ceases to partake of the motion of the vessel as soon as it strikes the water and will be left behind on the surface after a certain interval. If the distance of the ship from this stationary object will be measured, the approximate rate of sailing will be given.

The log chip is the float, the log line is the measure of the distance, and the log glass defines the interval of time.

In the old days the heaving of the log required skill and watchfulness, but since the patent log has come into use no skill is required in finding the speed of a vessel. It is regulated by clock-work, and the number of knots the vessel sails per hour is recorded on the dial without any hand touching it.

Old People Made Young. J. C. Sherman, the veteran editor of the Vermontville, (Mich.,) Echo, has discovered the remarkable secret of keeping old people young. For years he has avoided Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Indigestion, Heart trouble, Constipation and Rheumatism, by using Electric Bitters, and he writes: "It can't be praised too highly. It gently stimulates the kidneys, tones the stomach, aids digestion and gives a splendid appetite. It has worked wonders for my wife and me. It's a marvelous remedy for old people's complaints." Something New for Girls and Boys.

During the past year St. Nicholas Magazine, which has been for nearly thirty years the leading children's monthly magazine of the world (and now the only one), has introduced several new departments which have been extremely attractive and have greatly increased the circulation. One of these is

"NATURE and SCIENCE"

"Don't bother me—I'm too busy" is too often the remark from a grown-up person to a child who really wants to know. The editor of "Nature and Science" gives careful attention to every question asked by his young readers, and "We will write to St. Nicholas about it" has become the motto of the department, which contains interesting short articles, beautifully illustrated, telling of four-footed animals, birds, insects, water animals, plants, and whatever pertains to Nature.

"ST NICHOLAS LEAGUE"

is an organization of those who read the magazine (whether subscribers or not), without dues, and it offers prizes each month for the best drawings, photographs, poems, stories, puzzles and puzzle answers. Some of the work sent in by young folks shows surprising talent.

No one who does not see St. Nicholas can realize what an interesting magazine it is, and how exquisitely it is illustrated; it is a surprise to young and old. Of literature it contains the choicest, and in art it has never been surpassed by any grown folks' periodical. The new volume begins with November, 1900, and the subscription price is $4.00 a year. If there are children in your home, you can hardly afford to be without it.

BOYS and GIRLS who read this advertisement and who wish to find out more about The St. Nicholas League and its system of monthly prizes may address, without cost, The St. Nicholas League, Union Square, New York.

(Benson's Plaster Is Pain's Master.)

For coughs and colds Benson's Porous Plasters are an incomparably better remedy than any other—external or internal. Their medicinal properties enter the skin and go straight to the seat of the disease.

They relieve and cure a "seated" cold without disturbing the system or upsetting the stomach. Cough mixtures often nauseate. Benson's Plasters are medicinal in the highest degree, and quickest to act.

Placed on the chest or back or on both at once in serious cases, the good effect is felt immediately. The congestion yields, the cough abates and the breathing improves.

Lung or bronchial affections or kidney disease, are cured with the least possible suffering and loss of time.

Benson's Plasters are immeasurably superior to Belladonna, Strengthening, Capsicum or any other combination in plaster form. They are also preferable to ointments, liniments and salves.

Benson's Plasters have received fifty-five highest awards over all competitors; and more than 5,000 physicians and druggists have declared them to be one of the few trustworthy household remedies. For sale by all druggists, or we will prepay postage on any number ordered in the United States on receipt of 25c. each.

A FAR VISION.

I went to an oculist the other day to beg for glasses that would keep my eyes from getting tired.

"My dear madame," the doctor said earnestly, "the prescription for tired eyes is not a new pair of glasses, but rest."

"Of course," I answered, impatiently, "but in my case that is impossible. I am obliged to use my eyes steadily twelve hours, at least, out of the twenty-four. Now please don't say 'rest' to me again, but do the best you can to help me work."

The good man sighed. No doubt he was often persecuted with unreasonables like myself, but I waited in silence while he considered my case.

"You live in the country, I believe?" he said, presently.

"Yes, in a small village; it is the same thing."

"Have you a distant view from your window?"

"O, doctor!" I cried, "If I could only show it to you!" And forgetting my business and his, I began to expatiate with an enthusiasm known only to the mountain-born and mountain-bred upon the glories of the Allegheny foothills from my back window and the noble Blue Ridge peaks facing my front door.

"That will do," the busy man interrupted me, smiling, "that will be better than glasses. When your eyes are tired following your pen or the lines of a book, go and stand at your back window or your front door and gaze steadily at your mountains for five minutes. Ten will be better. You see what I mean? This will serve to change the focus, and so rest your eyes, as walking up hill rests a man who has been footing it all day on a level."

CAN'T LEAVE WALL STREET.

Speaking of the fascination which Wall street exerts over those who have once entered its speculative arena, a newspaper man said:

"In one of the largest commission brokerage establishments in Wall street at the noon hour I found scores of brokers both old and young, feverishly scanning the quotations. I singled out a patriarchal looking broker, a pioneer on 'change.

"'Can a man retire from Wall street?' I asked him.

"'You bet he can,' the old man replied, 'when he's flat broke. That's the only kind of a man I've ever known to "retire" from Wall street during an experience of nearly 40 years. Of course if he can raise a few dollars he'll be right back again.

"'Then there's the man who has cleaned up a neat little fortune on some clever deal and taken a solemn oath never to come near the "street" again. He always comes back.

"'I knew one man, however, who really did quit. He is the exception that proves the rule, but he never had courage to come down town farther than Fourteenth street. The magnet failed to touch him at that distance.'"

SOME USES FOR SODA.

Boil greasy tins in soda water once a week, and use hot soda water, for a greasy sink.

A pinch of carbonate of soda put into the teapot will increase the strength of the tea. This applies particularly to places where the water is hard.

Common washing soda dissolved in water until the liquid will take up no more is said to be an excellent cure for warts. Moisten the warts with it, and let them dry without wiping.

A burn caused by a hot iron will cease to pain almost immediately if a piece of soda, moistened with the tongue, is put on. .. scald or burn, if the skin is not broken, can be cured by placing the burnt part in a strong soda water.

Put a piece of soda the size of a walnut to a tablespoonful of salt into a basin, and pour on boiling water. Allow dirty sponges to stand in this for a short time when they will be quite clean and free from grease. Rinse in cold water.

Dissolve a cupful of soda in a gallon of water, and leave in a jar near the kitchen sink. Into this throw all pieces of soap and remains of packets of dry soap. Dip into the jar, and add to the water used for washing and scrubbing very dirty pans, earthenware, tinware, woodwork (but not paint), and for washing kitchen clothes and dusters.—Home Life.

"The Liberal Party in England," by one of the most distinguished of English Liberals, who, for very sufficient reasons, prefers to remain anonymous, is a worthy defence of the party from a partisan's viewpoint. Arthur P. Davis, the distinguished Hydrographer of the Isthmian Canal Commission, contributes an article under the title, "Panama and Nicaragua Canals Compared," which, at this time, when the question is foremost in the American mind, must prove absorbingly interesting to all who note the progress of Greater America. "The District of Columbia in its Centennial year," an article following so closely the recent "Centennial Celebration" at the National Capitol, is contributed by Henry B. F. Macfarland, President of the Board of Commissioners for the District of Columbia. Prescott F. Hall, the eminent Boston lawyer, writes of "New Problems of Immigration." "The New Congressional Apportionment," by Henry Gannet, Geographer of the United States Geological Survey, imparts much that is of value to political students, and the lay mind as well. "The Fall of Pekin," by Rev. Gilbert Reid, is a brief summary of the causes leading up to the occupation of the Chinese Imperial city by the allied forces. The President of Hobart College, Robert Ellis Jones, contributes a forceful and rather startling article under the caption, "Is the College Graduate Impracticable?" Hudson Maxim, the famous expert in, and inventor of, high explosives, writes of "Smokeless Cannon Powder in the Light of the Most Recent Discoveries." "A New Industry Brought by an Insect," is a highly entertaining and instructive article, by the famous Government entomologist, L. O. Howard. The article by Henry Loomis Nelson, the brilliant journalist, treats of "The Purpose of Civil Service Reform." "Max Muller and His Work" is a scholarly exposition of the great philologist and Orientalist and his life-labors, by Prof. A. V. Williams Jackson, of the faculty of Columbia University. Oscar Lovell Triggs, Professor of Literature in the University of Chicago, contributes a masterly article, entitled "A Century of American Poetry," that will be universally appreciated by all who are interested in the development of this branch of American literature. The January number fully maintains the high reputation The Forum has achieved amongst high class periodicals.

No External Symptoms.

The blood may be in bad condition, yet with no external signs, no skin eruption or sores to indicate it. The symptoms in such cases being a variable appetite, poor digestion, an indescribable weakness and nervousness, loss of flesh and a general run-down condition of the system—clearly showing the blood has lost its nutritive qualities, has become thin and watery. It is in just such cases that S. S. S. has done some of its quickest and most effective work by building up the blood and supplying the elements lacking to make it strong and vigorous.

"My wife used several bottles of S. S. S. as a blood purifier and to tone up a weak and emaciated system, with very marked effect by way of improvement. "We regard it a great tonic and blood purifier."—J. F. Duff, Princeton, Mo.

SSS is the greatest of all tonics, and you will find the appetite improves at once, strength returns, and nervousness vanishes as new rich pure blood once more circulates through all parts of the system.

S. S. S. is the only purely vegetable blood purifier known. It contains no minerals whatever. Send for our free book on blood and skin diseases and write our physicians for any information or advice wanted. No charge for medical advice.

ram's, had she eaten all of the indigestible things that were given to her.

When the train reached Chicago there were half a dozen persons ready and eager to put Janie on the right train, and the new conductor said, when he had read the card sewed to her apron: "All right, little one. We will see to it that you reach River Bend in safety. We don't allow anything bad to happen to little girls out here in the west."

There never was a jollier or kinder conductor than that one was. He took Janie forward and had her ride on the locomotive in the cab with the engineer for fifty miles, and he said, merrily:

"You can have the free run of this train, and if any one tries to stop you, you let me know about it, and there will be trouble right off. I have three little girls of my own, and it is my opinion that little girls ought to do about as they please, speshly when they are trav'ling alone."

There are thousands and thousands of kind hearts in the world, and thousands and thousands of good men and women who know that it is God's will that they should be very kind and tender toward little boys and girls who are orphans, and it seemed as if nearly all of the men and women on that train were of this class, for there never was a little orphan girl who received more kind and loving attention than was given to Janie. All of the passengers in the car were on the alert when the train drew near River Bend. All of them wanted to get a glimpse of Uncle Hiram, and they were glad that the train was to stay twenty minutes for luncheon at River Bend, although they were not very much interested in the luncheon. They were all in the aisle ready to leave the car when the train stopped at River Bend.

Those who left the car first saw on the station platform a big, sunburned man dressed as a farmer. He had a bushy brown beard, and the kindest and merriest look in his big blue eyes. One of the passengers was so sure that this was Uncle Hiram that he went up to him before Janie had appeared, and said, heartily:

"She is in there, Uncle Hiram. Excuse me for being so familiar, but we all feel that Uncle Hiram is an old friend; we have heard so much about him from Janie. Here she is, in the arms of the conductor."

Uncle Hiram was at the car steps reaching up his arms for Janie before the conductor stepped down on to the platform.

"Hello, Janie, little one!" said Uncle Hiram, heartily. "Here I am, and your Aunt Mary is behind the station in the wagon holding the horses. Well, well, what a fine big girl you are! Got your father's eyes and mouth to a T! Got a kiss for your old uncle?"

She put her arms around his neck and kissed his bronzed cheek, and he gave her another hug, saying loudly and heartily:

"That's right! Ain't a mite afeerd of your uncle, are you? My goodness! why should you be? Let me take you right around to your Aunt Mary. She's awful anxious to see her new little girl. She ain't got but five little girls now, you know. The others are so wild to see their new little sister that I bet we'll find 'em on the road more than a mile from the farm, comin' to meet you. An' my! they've got more things to show you than you can shake a stick at! Now we will go to Aunt Mary."

Aunt Mary held out her arms for Janie and said, almost tearfully: "Come right to me my child! I knew your mother when she was a little girl like you, and I am going to be your mother now. I'm so glad you got here all safe and sound!"

There were handkerchiefs waving from every window of the car when Janie and her uncle and aunt drove away, just as the train started, and the little girl said, sweetly, as she sat on her Aunt Mary's lap: "They was awful good to me."

"Of course they was, dearie," said her aunt, affectionately. "There's lots of awful good folks in the world."

And the little wayfarer, who had journeyed into so much love and tenderness, looked up into the kindly face of her new mother and said, in a way that caused her aunt to give her another hug: "But I guess there ain't any of 'em any gooder than you and my Uncle Hiram."—J. L. Harbour, in the Young Reader.

THE PAPER OF THE PEOPLE, BY THE PEOPLE and WITH THE PEOPLE.

HONEST IN MOTIVE FEARLESS IN EXPRESSION SOUND IN PRINCIPLE

A newspaper is an educator; there are all kinds of educators, but the man who spends money judiciously and liberally is better able to impart his knowledge than the man who has little or nothing to spend.

THE SUN is the highest type of a newspaper.

THE SUN'S Special Correspondents throughout the United States, as well as in Europe, South Africa, China, and, in fact, all over the world, make it an up-to-date newspaper.

The Market Reports and commercial features put the farmer, the merchant and the broker in close touch with the markets at Baltimore, Norfolk, Charleston, New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and other places which are prominent centers.

From now on the news of the world promises to be more interesting than ever before and national and political questions will arise, making probably the most eventful period in the country's history.

This, together with the corps of editors and reporters at Baltimore, Washington and New York, make THE SUN invaluable to its readers.

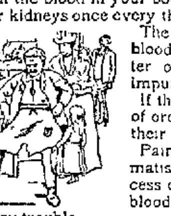
Over-Work Weakens Your Kidneys.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes.



The kidneys are your blood purifiers, they filter out the waste or impurities in the blood. If they are sick or out of order, they fail to do their work.

Pains, aches and rheumatism come from excess of uric acid in the blood, due to neglected kidney trouble.

Kidney trouble causes quick or unsteady heart beats, and makes one feel as though they had heart trouble, because the heart is over-working in pumping thick, kidney-poisoned blood through veins and arteries.

It used to be considered that only urinary troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all constitutional diseases have their beginning in kidney trouble.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.
